"In giving thanks this Thanksgiving Holiday, don't give your life!"

This plea comes from the Mississippi Highway Patrol which last year reported 12 traffic deaths over was stationed in that country. The of Mr. and Mrs. Ducre Bourge the four-day Thanksgiving period.

Highway accident statistics at Patrol Headquarters show this fall celebration to be one of the most costly holidays in lives lost, with the number of accidents Mrs. Cobb is the former Miss Auincreasing annually. During Thanksgiving 1953, there were 208 accidents reported; the following Thanksgiving, 231; in 1955, there were 234; last year Thanksgiving in New Orleans with This column extends them best foremost of our outdoor stars, a Twelve died in the wreckage of their autos last year In 1955, the Thanksgiving toll stood at eight killed; and the year before, there were nine persons reported killed.

The Highway Patrol report shows that during the comes them to Waveland. past four November celebrations a total of 399 motorists have been seriously injured in highway mishaps.

Commissioner of Public Safety Tom Scarborough points out that the frequency of traffic mishaps, during weekdays or holidays, can be substantially curbed 39 years old. Mr. Prejean was the ident of the State of Mississippi, when the motoring public becomes "safety conscious."

"Each individual motorist's attitude is important. One irresponsible driver on a highway can endanger the lives of many," he stressed.

THE CIVIL AIR PATROL

In midwinter 1942 a four-engine Liberator bombber on a training flight crashed on the isolated, 13,000foot crest of Little Baldy in northern New Mexico. A blinding blizzard lashed the nine survivors. Those not as badly injured gave what help and comfort they could to their stricken comrades but the situation seemed hopeless. Having cheated death once the men now might easily succumb to the cold and the biting

A night and a day passed. On searching Flying Fortress spotted them but the food and medical supplies it dropped were snatched by the wind to settle beyond reach on the crags below the tiny saddle of

At the search base the mission commander was faced with what seemed an impossible task. Ground parties could never reach the scene in time. Helicopters couldn't cope with the 13,000-foot altitude and swirling winds. In desperation the job was turned over to an outfit organizeed only a few months before the Civil Air Patrol.

In a short time Capt. Norman Kramer and his observer, 1st Lt. Arthur Mosher, were winging their way to the crash scene in a tiny, single-engine, two-place Taylorcraft. Mountain winds racked the little plane. The engine sputtered and gasped in violent protest against the rarified air.

Flying on nerve alone Kramer nursed the little plane to 13,000 feet and swung over the saddle. He circled closer and then brought his craft within feet of the survivors dropping his load of medical supplies right in their laps. On his second trip that morning Kramer elected to risk a try at landing on the narrow, wind-saddle of rock. Fighting to keep the plane under control Kramer made the daring landing.

In these activities the vounteer, civilian members of the Civil Air Patrol daily give their all—their time their money with no thought of compensation.

On December 1, these volunteers some 75,000 strong celebrate their sixteenth anniversary. We join with the President of the United States and the grateful citizens of this great nation in saluting these outstanding Americans.

Best 4-H Councils Are Selected By Extension Judges

Alcorn, Humphreys, Jackson, Yazoo Get United Gas Awards

Four Mississippi 4-H County Councils, each chosen the most outstanding in the state's 4-H Extension Districts, will receive cash awards for their achievements in 1957.

Winning recognition for their leadership were the 4-H councils of Alcorn County in the Northeast District, Humphreys County in the Northwest District, Jackson County in the Southeast District and Yazoc County in the Southwest District. Each winning council receives a $50 award from United Gas, sponsor of the 4-H Junior Leadership Program.

Announcement of the winning councils in the state-wide competition was made by State 4-H Leader C. I. Smith, following a rigid comparison of County Council records by Extension Service personnel, Selections were based on the councils' yearbooks, secretaries records and "stories of achievement."

Smith stated "this recognition of the state's outstanding 4-H.
